Proudly serving Jersey for over 125 Years

It's our privilege to support you.

1930's

The Pitcher family acquired Sinnats and Connerys, the leading Jersey Funeral Directors that held funeral records going back to the 1820s.

During the war we conducted the funerals of British servicemen washed up on the beaches of Jersey. As the biggest Funeral Directors we carried out funerals of many German servicemen.

1940's

1970's

John Le Quesne, owner of Le Quesne Funeral Directors, approached Dennis Pitcher, to buy the business. In 1972 the two companies joined together to become Pitcher and Le Quesne.

Pitcher & Le Quesne have been entrusted by many families to look after their loved ones at the end of their life. And are proud to continue our service to the island.

It's our privilege to help

This booklet explains the decisions you have to make and includes some of the things you should think about when planning the service.

We will always be available to discuss any decisions with you.

If you want to change any arrangements you have already made, please let us know.

Choosing between a burial and a cremation

Whether you choose a burial or a cremation, we will make all the arrangements with the crematorium, cemetery or place of burial on your behalf.

We can also provide advice and guidance on memorials and any local regulations.

Some things to consider about a cremation

- It usually costs less than a burial
- The funeral service can be held at the crematorium or a venue such as a church before going to the crematorium
- Single slot services at the crematorium are limited to 30 minutes.
- You will need to decide the final resting place for the ashes. The ashes can be kept in an urn, scattered or buried. We can arrange for an inscription to be placed in the Book of Remembrance at the crematorium.

Some things to consider about a burial

- A grave or plot may have already been purchased. We can arrange for this to be reopened and the headstone removed before burial.
- In some areas, burial space may no longer be available or may be very expensive.
- If others wish to be buried at the same location, you may be able to buy additional plots dependent on the cemetery regulations.
- You can hold the funeral service in a place of worship, crematorium or at the graveside. We also have a Chapel available for small private services.
- After the burial, you will need to consider if you want a memorial headstone or a new inscription on an existing headstone.

Some things to consider about a burial at sea

Burial at sea is an alternative to a traditional interment in a cemetery. Burials at sea have been conducted for many centuries. Burial at sea is commonly requested by those who have served in the Navy, or by those who have a long-standing and personal association with the sea. It's a specialist and complex procedure, involving many legal and practical hurdles. By instructing the services of Pitcher & Le Quesne Funeral Directors, you can rest assured that all matters will be handled with efficiency and professionalism, by a team who are experienced in the procedures relating to a burial at sea.

Arranging the funeral

We will need the following information from you to arrange the funeral of your loved one:

- The full name of the person who has died
- Their full address
- Their date and place of birth
- Details of where and when they died
- If the person died in Jersey, Pitcher & Le Quesne will register the death on your behalf
- Whether the person who has died had a pacemaker fitted. Pacemakers must be removed before a cremation takes place

Looking after your loved one

We will look after the person who has died with respect and sensitivity. They will rest with us until the day of the funeral. If you prefer, they can rest at home or a place of worship if permitted.

Embalming delays the natural processes that take place after death. This is particularly important if you want to visit the person in the Chapel of Rest. We will discuss embalming with you while arranging the funeral.

We wash and dress everyone in our care before the funeral. If you like, you can provide us with a recent photograph to help us. You can also provide us with items such as make-up, nail polish, glasses and dentures if worn. If you supply jewellery, we will ask you if you would like it returned or remain with your loved one.

Any jewellery unsuitable for cremation will be returned to you.

If you would like to keep a lock of hair, we can arrange this too. You may also like us to dress the person in their own clothes, such as a favourite outfit. Alternatively, we can dress them in a gown if you prefer.

Our staff will carry out your wishes carefully and respectfully. If you would like to help us look after your loved one, please let us know.

Visiting the person who has died in the chapel of rest.

Some people find it helps to see the person who has died and like to bring a small gift or photograph to place in the coffin. Some items are not suitable for cremation and we will tell you about these. We can also offer advice if children also wish to visit.

The funeral service

The funeral service is a way of saying goodbye to the person who has died. Some people consider this to be as an opportunity to mourn their loved one or a chance to celebrate their life.

We arrange the funeral to meet your wishes

Whether it is based around family traditions, to reflect the life of a loved one or in adherence to cultural or religious beliefs. The service can include anything you feel appropriate. Below we've listed the main considerations when arranging a funeral service:

- Where and when will the service be held
- Who will lead the service
- What to include in the service – such as a reading or a poem perhaps by a family member or a friend
- The choice of music, songs or hymns
- Whether you would like flowers
- Order of service / memory cards
- Funeral notices and obituaries
- The choice of hearse or whether you would like limousines
- Are there any special arrangements you would like us to make?

The service location, day and time

A funeral service can be held in any suitable venue. Many people choose to have the service in a place of worship or crematorium chapel. The service can include anything you feel appropriate. If you choose a religious service the minister will say what you can and cannot do. Please tell us if there is any time or day that does not suit you.

Leading the service

Many funerals are held in a church and the minister will advise on what is available within their church. It is usual for the minister of that church to lead the service. If you want to hold the service at the crematorium and would like a religious service, your local minister will be able to lead the service there for you. You can also use the crematorium chapel to hold a service that is not religious. We can also use other public venues or marquees. In theory, anyone can lead a funeral service. It could be a religious minister, a non-religious minister such as a celebrant, the Funeral Director or a friend or relative.

Additional things to consider

Your chosen flowers will be delivered to our premises on the morning of the funeral and will be placed on the coffin prior to leaving for the service.

There are many options and considerations for the funeral procession.

- The cortège may commence from the home of the deceased and include limousines to transport family and close friends
- The hearse may leave for the service from the funeral home where the limousines will join the procession to the service
- The family may wish to meet the hearse at the church or crematorium and follow the coffin into the service
- You may wish for the coffin to be in place in the church or crematorium prior to the service commencing, with the family and close friends arriving by limousine and ushered by the Funeral Director to their seats
- The coffin will be carried by four pallbearers, but if you wish family members or friends to bear the coffin please discuss this with your Funeral Director. Arrangements can then be made for bearing practice to be held under our supervision.

Whether at church or at the crematorium, close family members will be seated at the front, these seats will be reserved for family use only. It is therefore essential that we know how many seats to reserve. If you have special requirements or a seating plan, please let us know.

Attendance or memory cards can be provided to those attending the service, thus enabling you to browse through friends' and family's cherished memories and sentiments at your leisure.

We can also arrange floral pedestals for the church or crematorium. These can either be left in the church or crematorium for decoration or donated to a local nursing home or hospice following the service.

If you have chosen a burial, the coffin will be taken to your chosen cemetery after the service where the interment and a short graveside service will take place.

Flowers delivered to the funeral home will be placed nearby to the grave so that mourners can see them.

Please remember there is a time limit for a service at the crematorium. If you anticipate the service to be attended by many mourners, or wish to include readings or special requests it may be prudent to book a double service time. This may incur an additional cost.

Your funeral choices

What would you like to be said and by whom?

Many services include readings and prayers. The person leading the service or a mourner will often say something about the person who has died. You can include poetry and passages, and friends and family can take part. If the person delivering the main tribute has never met the person who has died, make sure they know personal details such as the name they were known by and its pronunciation.

What music would you like?

Music, including hymns, popular songs and live music, often plays an important part in a funeral service. However, some churches have strict rules on the type of music allowed. If there is a piano, keyboards or a pipe organ, make sure the organist can play the hymns or songs you want.

Would you like flowers?

Many people choose flowers that were a favourite of the person who has died. This is another way of making the funeral more personal. There are so many types of floral arrangements, and we have a brochure you can take away to help you decide.

Some people choose to have flowers from the family only and choose an organisation for people to give a donation to. It is worth remembering that sending flowers can be a healing gesture for people who have lost someone close. It might be worth giving people the choice of sending flowers or donating money to a charity, or both.

We will collect the cards from the wreaths and bouquets and present them to you later if you wish. If you'd like to keep a reminder, we can take a single fresh flower from each arrangement.

Would you like an order of service?

You may like to provide order of service. These are helpful for mourners to follow the service and can be sent to people who are unable to attend. An order of service includes the hymns or songs, readings and anything else you like. We can also supply attendance or memory cards.

After the funeral we can print thank you cards for you to send to people who gave flowers and donations.

Do you want an announcement in the newspapers?

You may want to put an obituary or announcement in a local or national newspaper that includes death and the details of the funeral. After the funeral you can also place a message in a newspaper to thank the people who attended and sent donations and flowers.

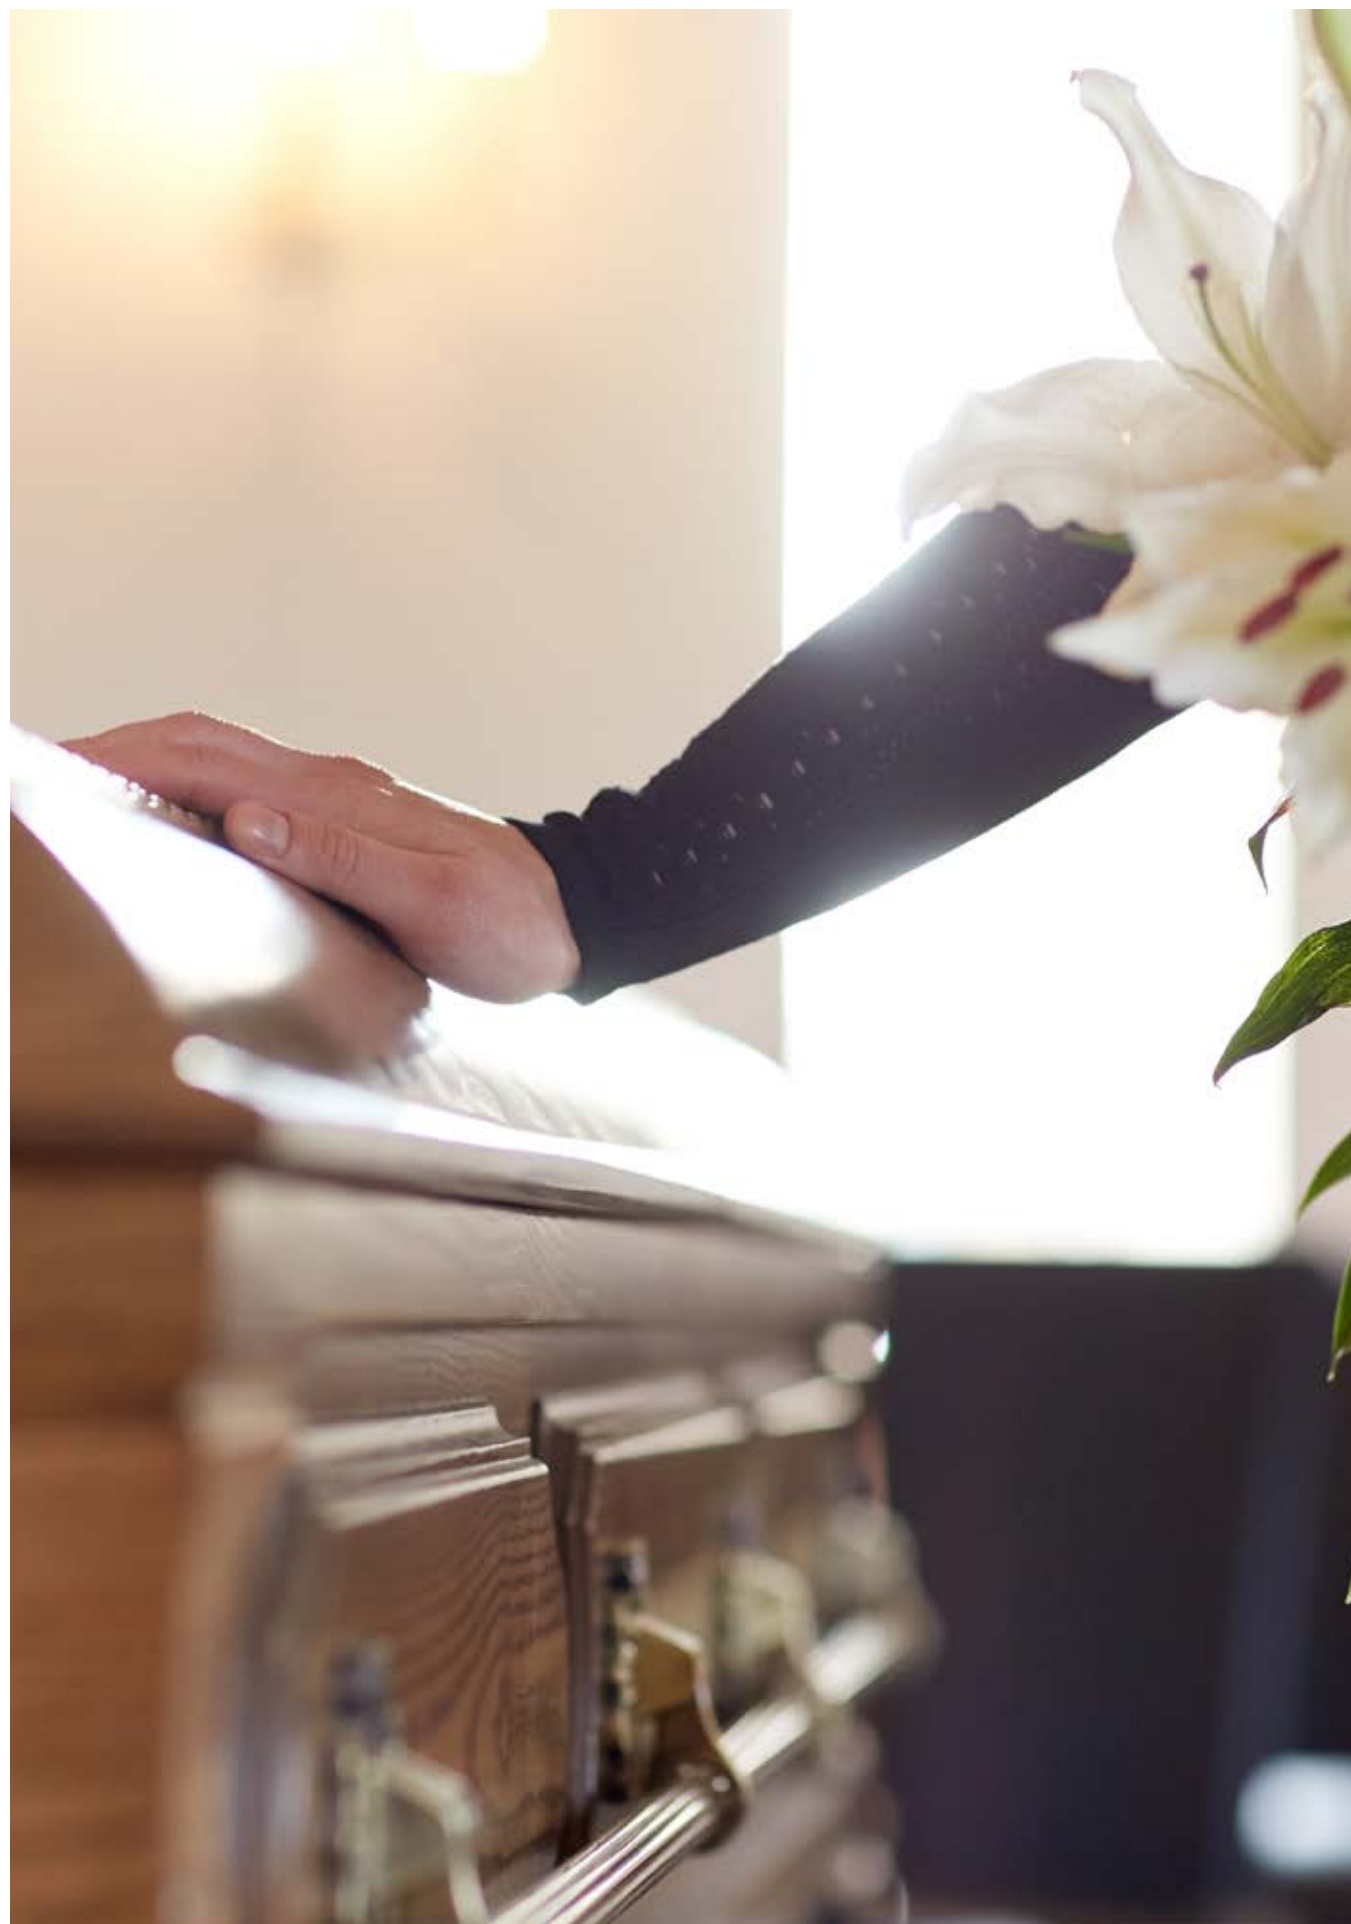

We are here to help whenever you need us.

We are available 24 hours a day, every day of the year.

A lasting memory

Many people gain comfort from having a memorial for the person who has died at a place they can visit and remember cherished memories.

If the person who has died has been buried, you may wish to consider a memorial gravestone. If it is a family grave, you may want to have a new inscription, or replace the memorial if it is damaged.

We can help and advise you on a choice of memorial and make the arrangements on your behalf.

If the person has been cremated you may choose to have the ashes buried in the rose garden at the crematorium, in a churchyard or cemetery. Some people scatter or bury their loved one's ashes in a particular spot in the garden or a place they loved, or even on football pitches or at sea. If you do not own the place where you want the ashes to be scattered, you will need permission from the landowner or relevant authority.

We can offer a selection of urns or caskets for you to keep your loved one's ashes. Please ask us if this is something you would like to consider.

There is no need to make a decision straight away about the memorial. We are always available after the funeral for you to talk to and provide any advice or information to help you decide.

We are here to help whenever you need us.

We are available 24 hours a day, every day of the year.

A few days after the funeral

Being trusted with something as important as a person's final wishes is an honour and a privilege that we never take lightly.

Shortly after the funeral, we will contact you to ask if there is anything else we can help you with. We have a range of helpful leaflets on coming to terms with a death and we can put you in touch with local counselling services and support groups.

Paying for the funeral

Once we have made the funeral arrangements and agreed a date for the service, we will give you written confirmation of the arrangements. We will itemise our costs and an estimate of the payments we will make to others, such as the minister, florist, newspaper, crematorium or cemetery, on your behalf.

Jersey Probate Law

Grant of probate

Personal Application for a Grant of Probate for Jersey Residents.

The purpose of this Grant of Probate is to formally authorise someone to administer the moveable estate of a deceased person in cases where the deceased has left a valid Will. This does not include the authority to deal with immoveable property (real estate) for which the services of a Jersey lawyer are required.

Applications for a Grant of Probate are often made through the offices of a Jersey lawyer, however in certain instances a personal application can be made by the executor named in the Will.

The original Will with any Codicils will be required.

Grant of Letters of Administration

Personal Applications for a Grant of Letters of Administration for Jersey Residents.

The purpose of this Grant is to formally authorise someone to administer the moveable estate of a deceased person in cases where the deceased has died without a Will. This does not include the authority to deal with immoveable property (real estate) for which the services of a Jersey lawyer are required.

In both cases, when making personal applications, it is necessary to make preliminary enquiries to the Probate Section of the Judicial Greffe to establish that the correct person is making application and to ensure that the correct documents and information are available.

Applications must be supported by the following documents;

- Original Death Certificate, Interim Death Certificate or Letter of Fact of Death (from the Deputy Viscount)
- Official confirmation of the value of assets and debts as at the date of death
- Photographic proof of identity of the applicant (ie passport or driving licence)

Only until such time as the Executor/Administrator has sworn the Oath at the office of the Judicial Greffier the moveable estate must not be administered in any way, save to arrange the funeral and to take into safe custody the moveable estate of the deceased person.

Stamp Duty and other fees are calculated on the net value of the deceased's worldwide estate and official confirmation of assets and debts must be provided prior to the formal appointment. All values must be at date of death or, in case of stocks and shares, the nearest trading day to the date of death.

Typical assets may include monies held in bank accounts and the Co-op, stocks and shares, insurance policies, motor vehicles, collections and share transfer property.

Typical debts may include the funeral account, doctor's fees and utility bills. The cost of a memorial and reception after the funeral do not constitute a debt against the estate for Stamp Duty purposes.

The Judicial Greffe is based at Royal Court House, Royal Square, St Helier JE1 1JG.

All initial enquiries should be directed to the Probate Officer. Telephone: 01534 441308.
